Watching movie trailers gives you a glimpse at what a movie is all about before you watch it. Below are the best places to find free movie previews. Most movie trailer sites are really similar, so you'll find everything from the latest movie trailers for upcoming movies to old trailers, handmade lists of the best movie trailers and several trailers for the same movie. If you find a trailer for something you're interested in, first check if it's on a free movie streaming site before you pay for it. iTunes Movie Trailers is part of Apple's website that has just movie trailers. The videos are high quality and the site is free of ads, so it's one of the best places to go for the best movie trailers. You can sort these movie gloves by recently adding, most popular, exclusive, genre and studio. With the search tool you can find a movie trailer by the actors and director. Most movie trailer sites don't support as many browsing methods, so this is your best bet to find trailers for movies you don't even know about yet. RSS feed at the bottom of Apple's website lets you stay up to date with every new movie trailer they release. Trailer Addict is another site dedicated to movie trailers. There's an All Films page plus other useful episodes like Top Films to find the best movie trailers, Coming Soon for previews for upcoming movies, Out Now for current trailers and a Tag Browser page to find movie gloves by cast, studio or genre. These trailers are also sectioned into categories like Adaptation and Trailer Type so you can find trailers for remakes or movies based outside of books, musicals, video games, etc. Each trailer page explains the movie, displays screenshots from the trailer, lists the release date, enables comments and lets you find similar movies based on genre. With millions of titles and extremely thorough movie information, IMDb is one of the top 100 websites in the world and is a must-visit website for anyone looking for movie trailers. The trailer section of IMDb allows you to view previews of the most popular movies and locate all the newly added trailers for movies just released and others that are coming out soon. If not for trailers alone, movie lovers should visit IMDb just to see the sheer amount of detail they have on both movies and TV shows. It is one of the best places to learn who played, or will play, in a movie or TV show. Another way to find the latest movie trailers is FirstShowing.net. Previews contain lots of background information and actor resources so you can get more of an idea of what the movie is about from additional information. There's also a movie release schedule here for this year and next year so you can see when movies come out while watching the trailer. Another place to find previews of upcoming movies, trailers from the top box office current movie trailers, and more, are Rotten Tomatoes. Scroll through the movie trailers on this site are is because they are all on a single page. Find only the episode you want, such as movies on Netflix, and select any image to open the trailer for that movie. You can also browse movie trailers by when the movie will be in theaters and of the top-streamed movies. With sorting and filtering options, you can find trailers for movies that have a specific Rotten Tomatoes score, movies in one or more specific genres, and movies that are popular or recently added to the site. YouTube is the most popular video streaming site on the web, so it's no surprise that it's one of the best movie preview sites as well. Film production companies and other users can upload movie trailers to YouTube that are free for everyone to watch. Unlike other sites that have movie trailers, youtube doesn't have a page dedicated to just trailers; they are mixed with music videos, podcasts, news stations, and more. This means you can't easily find trailers for movies coming out soon or new trailers that have just been released. Instead, you can search for which movie trailer you want to watch. There are also channels dedicated to trailers, such as Movieclips Trailers and FRESH Movie Trailers. You can also visit a YouTube channel from a specific media company or production company, such as Warner Bros. Pictures or Disney. Get a movie preview, inside information, and the latest movie gossip on ComingSoon.net, one of the most popular entertainment sites on the web. Not only can you find all kinds of movie trailers, you also get first dibs on insider gossip, speculation about upcoming movie plots, actor and actress information, and more. One drawback of this movie trailer site is that you can only browse the trailers page of those just added and by a category called Exclusive. There is a search tool and a page full of movies, but none of them will guarantee that you will find trailers. Thanks for letting us know! Tell me why! Nowadays, trailers are as eagerly awaited as the actual films they advertise. For this week we have the final trailer from DC's next superhero flick, our first extended look at the new season of House of Cards, and more. Here's everything we saw this week. 1. Whiskey Tango Foxtrot Tina Fey's post-30 Rock career continues to roll on. Whiskey Tango Foxtrot tells the story of female journalist embedded with the military in Afghanistan, as she navigates the troubled waters of war and dated misogyny. Margot Robbie (Suicide Squad) stars alongside Fey, making a surprisingly cohesive comic duo. The latest trailer gives us a good look at the chemistry of the two actors on screen and a solid review of the overall history of the film. 2. Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice DC is currently getting its movie franchise off the ground, kicking things off in March with Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice. The film sets Man Steel against the Dark Knight, as gladiator match to end all gladiator matches. The last trailer was heavily criticized for away what looked to be the whole movie. For the final teaser though, we get more action and less spoiled history, leading us to wonder why this wasn't a Warner released in the first place. House of Cards, Season 4 House of Cards is a show that has seen its fair share of ups and downs. Its first two seasons were master classes in dramatic storytelling, lined with a disappointing third one that left many fans scratching their heads. Focusing more on Frank Underwood's marital issues than the political machinations that did it well originally, it was a subpar effort from a show that set the bar high in its early years. Season 4 looks to be a welcome return to form based on what we see in the first trailer, so here's hoping it can deliver on that promise. 4. High Rise Tom Hiddleston star is one who seems to rise with every movie he is attached to. High Rise is his latest project, in an Eyes Wide Shut-esque thriller about a living community gone wrong. The trailer paints a picture of a film that is equal parts social satire and horror, mixing all sorts of different tones together in a single story. 5. Broad City, Season 3 In recent years, Comedy Central has become ground zero for innovative, genre-bending satire. Programs like Key and Peele and Inside Amy Schumer have been widely regarded as some of the best comedies on TV, and an argument can be made for Broad City as well. Season 3 kicks off next week, and the newest trailer teases all the possible insanity we've come to expect from Ilana Glazer and Abbi Jacobson. Follow Nick on Twitter @NickNorthwest More from Entertainment Cheat Sheet: If you're one of watching movie trailers online, good news from Google: Google Video now hosts lots of movie trailers, and Google has integrated links to trailers in its search results. Just search for the movie name and your Zip/City on Google.com, and the first result will include a link to the trailer, as well as the critics' reviews and showtimes for your local cinema. I actually use Google to check showtimes on a fairly regular basis with movie operator + zipcode (eg film:90210), so I love that links to trailers are now integrated into the entire search. Even if Pirates of the Caribbean sucked, you can still watch the trailer over and over thanks to Google. Most Hallmark Christmas Movies Movies Movies In Canada Apple iMovie makes it easy to create movies and movie trailers on your macOS and iOS devices: Choose a genre, complete a simple outline, and choose your movie clips. We've used a clip from Santa Claus Conquers the Martians, a low-budget sci-fi flick from the early 1960s, to show you taking your iMovie to the next level. Instructions in this Article apply: 10 and iMovie '11. Note that iMovie 10 is newer than iMovie '11. Whether you're an aspiring filmmaker, posting your creations on YouTube or Vimeo, or working on a school project, trailers help you attract potential viewers. The hardest-or at least most time-consuming part of creating a movie trailer is finding the right images to use. iMovie offers 29 templates to help you get started. These templates include original movie scores, movie studio logos and customizable cast names and credits. Animated drop zones help you choose the videos and still images you want to use in your trailer. We used a clip from an old movie for this example. But you can find lots of copyright-free movies on the Internet Archive website to experiment with or use one of your own movies to create a movie trailer. If you've already imported the movie you want to use for your trailer, select it from the Library. If you haven't, take the following steps: Import the media file you want to use in your trailer: If the content you want to use is on your computer, choose File > Import Media. If the content you want to use is in iCloud, choose File > Import iMovie iOS Project. Browse to your media file, and then select Import Selected. iMovie imports the file or files you selected into your iMovie library. Depending on the size of the file, this process may take several minutes. Under iMovie Library, select your movie. Now you're ready to get started on your movie trailer. You can choose from 29 iMovie templates (or genres), including Action, Adventure, Blockbuster, Documentary, Friendship, Romance, Romantic Comedy, Sports, Spy, Supernatural, and Travel. There are also some more esoteric choices, such as Bollywood, Coming of Age, Film Noir, Indie and Retro. How could Apple have omitted Bad Sci-Fi, you ask? To be fair, there's a Supernatural template, but we chose the Adventure template for our trailer. Because each template contains different information, templates are not interchangeable. Once you've selected and started working on a template, you're committed to that template. If you want to see your trailer in a different template, you need to re-create your trailer from scratch. To select and apply a template for your movie trailer, complete the following steps: From the File menu, select New Trailer. In the Create window, select the trailer template you want, and then choose Create. When you hover over a template, the Play icon appears. Select Play to see an example of a trailer in that template. During the trailer, three tabs will appear: Outline, Storyboard and Shot List. The fields on each tab sheet will vary based on the template you selected. To enter the details that your movie trailer needs, complete the following steps: Select the Outline tab. The tab is divided into four sections: Name and DateCastStudioCredits Each field must contain information. If you leave a field blank, it will return to the In name and date date enter a movie name and release date. In the Cast section, enter a name for the movie's star. Then select, from the gender list, Male or Female. In the Studio section, enter a name for your studio. Choose how your studio logo appears in the trailer in the Logo Style list. When you choose a logo style, such as Snowy Mountain Peak, your logo appears with that theme above. You can change the logo style and all other information on this tab at any time, but you cannot customize the logo. In the Credits section, enter information about your production team and movie score. Select the Storyboard tab. A storyboard is a visual map of the sequences of the movie. Here you edit the text on the screen and select clips from your movie that fit the storyboard. For example, the second part of the Adventure template storyboard is set for an action shot and a medium shot. Add a video clip for each storyboard placeholder by filling in the following steps: Choose a placeholder in the navigation pane, under Library, select a photo or video. Don't worry about the length of a clip: iMovie adjusts it to fit the allotted time. If you change your mind about a clip you've selected for a placeholder, you can delete it or drag another video clip or video clip to the same placeholder. Doing so automatically replaces the previous video or photo. Select the Shot List tab. Here are the clips you've added to your movie trailer that are organized by type, such as Action or Medium. On this tab or on the Storyboard tab, you can change any of your selections. To view your movie trailer, select Play below the video window. The Play icon plays the trailer in the video window. To view the trailer in full screen, select Full Screen; to exit full-screen mode, press the Esc key on your keyboard. When you're happy with the movie trailer, you can share it by selecting the trailer in the Project view, and then selecting File > Share. Sharing options include email, YouTube, Facebook, and Vimeo. You can also use the Share menu to export your movie trailer to a file for viewing on a computer, Apple TV, iPod, iPhone, or iPad. Thanks for letting us know! Tell me why! Why!
